RESTAURANTS WE RECOMMEND

Cookbook Bar & Café

Austin Central Library's new downtown restaurant Cookbook Cafe menu is drawing from, well, the library's best assets: cookbooks. The counter-service menu is a patchwork of influential cookbooks, from granola parfait from The Commander's Palace Cookbook to Julia Child's split pea soup. Enjoy GREAT views of Lady Bird Lake on their patio.

Mon.-Thurs: 9am-9pm
Fri & Sat: 9am-7pm
Sun: 11a-7pm
710 W Cesar Chavez St

Loro

Hotly anticipated collaboration between Tyson Cole (from Uchi) and Aaron Franklin (Franklin's BBQ) is a spacious Asian smokehouse with soaring interiors in a casual, counter-service setting. Franklin's brisket gets the usual rave reviews, and items like oak grilled snap peas, corn fritters, and chicken karage keep the menu interesting. There's also a spacious patio for sipping the many creative cocktails.

Licha's Cantina

A cute cottage in East Austin is home to this Mexican cantina, specializing in modern takes on classic fare (big tortas, tacos on homemade blue corn tortillas and seafood cazuela), matched by a selection of cervezas and signature cocktails with an emphasis on mezcal and tequila; the street-facing patio is great for people-watching, while the intimate back patio offers a setting for late-night revelry.
